Physical and Environment Examinations are Important

Birds, like other pets, are great at hiding illness, which is why regular physical examinations and diagnostics are so important for maintaining optimal health. Our wellness plan saves you money on the total cost of recommended preventive care and treatments. Best of all, this plan features budget-friendly monthly payments - making it easy to manage your bird's healthcare costs.

Diagnostics generate an overall evaluation of a bird's health

To provide the best insight into your bird's health, diagnostic tests play a vital role. Complete Blood Count (CBC), and oropharyngeal smear, also known as a choanal smear or mouth smear, are two of the most useful in providing vital information.

Break and nail trimming

An overgrown beak can be a symptom of a nutritional deficiency or other medical problems. Abnormal or overgrown beaks restrict ability to groom properly and cause difficulty eating. Overgrown nails can lead to injury and discomfort.

Wing clipping

Wing clipping is done primarily for safety reasons, because a fully flighted bird is susceptible to accidental escape and injury. When a bird is startled or frightened their flight response can cause them to fly into doors/windows, ceiling fans, onto hot surfaces or even into water. In addition to these safety reasons, clipping your bird's wings will make handling and training much easier.
